

MUNDESHWARI COLLEGE FOR TEACHER EDUCATION

SET INDUCTION

Set Induction

- ❑ Set induction is also called anticipatory set.
- ❑ Steps taken by a teacher to begin a lesson or other classroom activity.
- ❑ To introduce topic and get students focused and interested in the days lesson.
- ❑ When the learners are set, they are ready to learn.
- ❑ It is about getting ready and induced into the right frame or mind-set to learn.
- ❑ Concerned with the ways of introducing the teaching and learning process.

Why Set Induction?

- ✓ To arrest or gain the attention of the learners and prepare them into a state of readiness.
- ✓ To motivate the learners and get them interested in the lesson.
- ✓ To get students focused or think on what is to be learned.
- ✓ To suggest an approach of the lesson.

SET INDUCTION

- Sets are used before any new activity, from introduction of a new concept to giving homework.
- It is important in each set both to create clarity about what is expected to happen (both what you will do and what they should do), and
- To create motivation .

Set induction can be done by such as:

- Explaining potential benefits to the learner.
- Giving clear instructions.
- Describing what is going to happen.

The STEP acronym may be used to help remember what to do:

- Start: Welcome the students, settle them down and gain attention.
- Transact: Understand their expectations and explain yours. Link with previous learning.
- Evaluate: Assess the gap between their expectations and current reality. Clarify any discrepancies for them.
- Progress: Move on to the main body of learning.

SET INDUCTION TECHNIQUE

- Attention Gaining Method
- Interest Method

Attention Gaining Method

- Perform or do something
- Do nothing
- Start talking in low tone
- Eye focus on students with disruptive behavior

Interest Method

- Ask perplexing questions
- Show specimens , samples or real objects
- Present a case study
- Show pictures
- Give demonstration

OBSERVATIONAL LEARNING THEORY (Albert Bandura)

thank you!